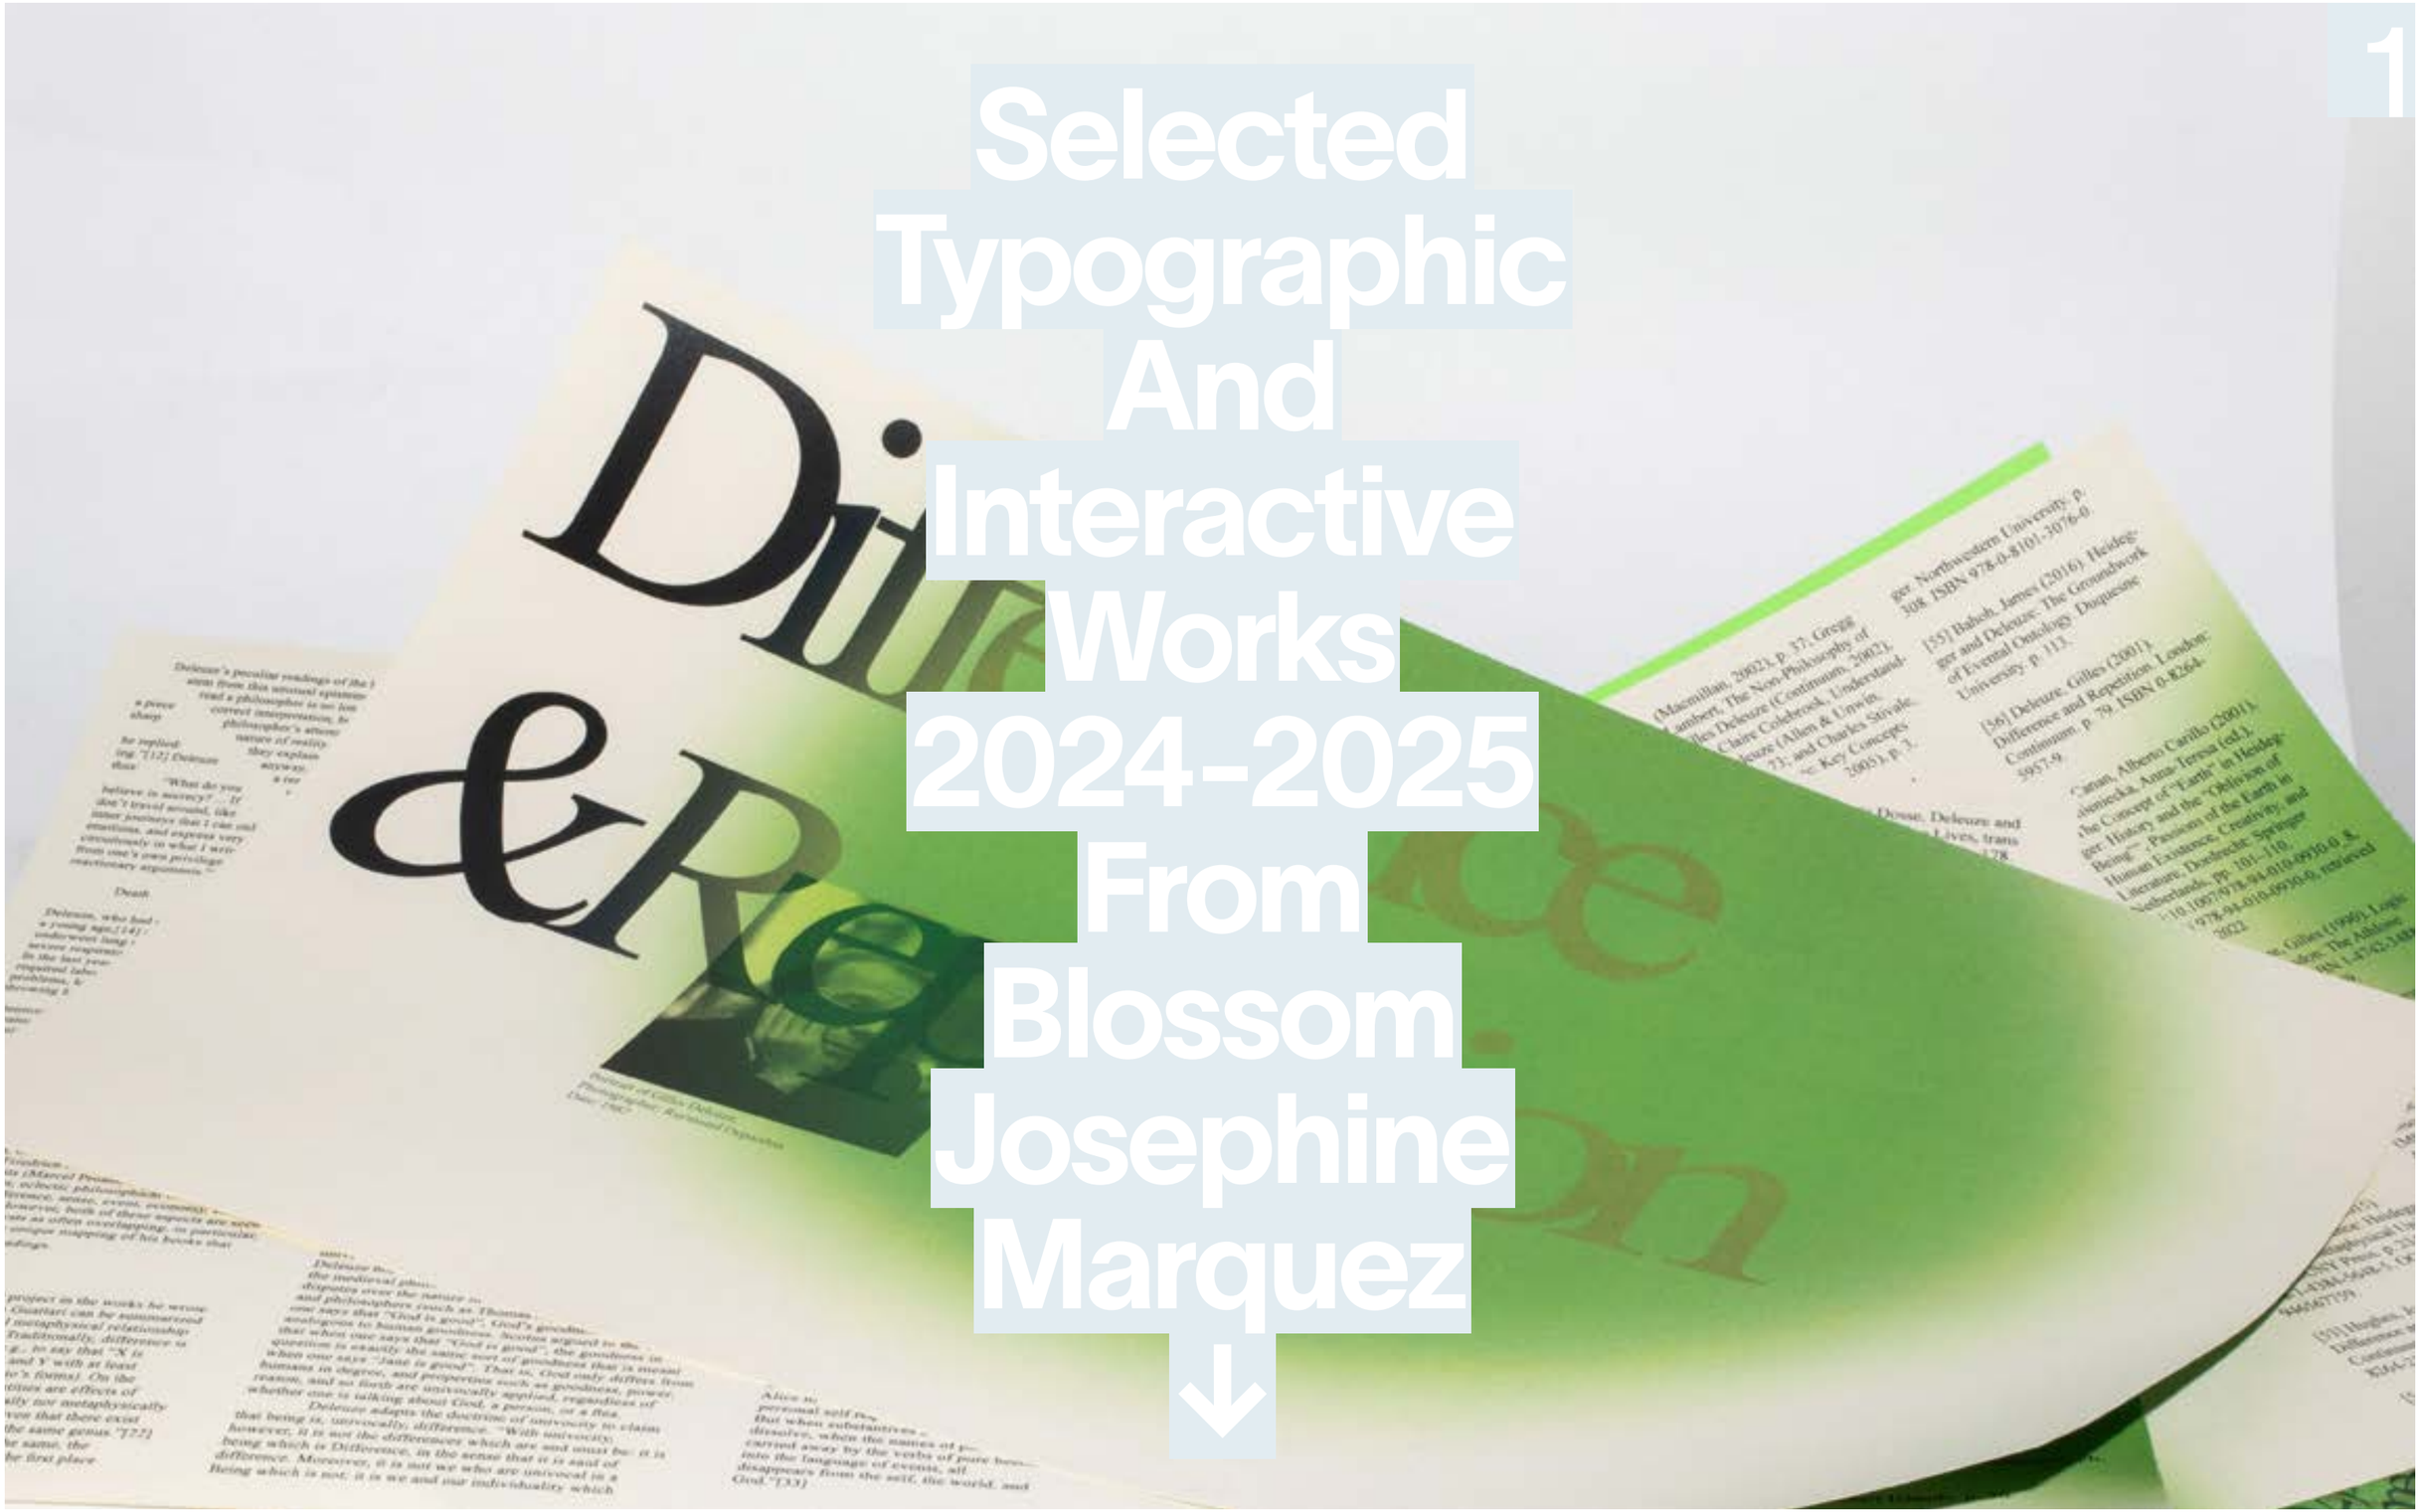
Selected Typographic And Interactive Works 2024–2025

From Blossom Josephine Marquez



My wiki booklet was an exploration of deterritorialization in graphic design and its potential uses. Exhibited here is the use case of a book design, represented in this design is the Wikipedia page for the French philosopher Gilles Deleuze.

philosophy has a
as philos
grasp the thing itself,
according to w its difference from everything it is r words, in its
nce. [23]

Difference &Repetition one's own are bad and re
ments. [13]

Skymap

Avian Species Richness
in European Cities

Toledo ES
Granada ES
Madrid ES
Poitiers FR
Groningen NL
Pesaro IT
Prague CZ
Poznan PL
Budapest HU
Ioannina GR
Turku FI
Athens GR
Jyväskylä FI
Tartu EE

Avian Species Richness
in European Cities
Species richness is the number of different species represented in an ecological community. For this study researchers focused on 127 breeding species of birds at using 1349 point counts across 14 European cities. These cities were chosen for their ecological variation (High Desert, Coastal, Forests, Wetlands), alongside their longitudinal variation.
The gathered information has been organized from the Western most point (Toledo, Spain) to the Eastern most point (Tartu, Estonia).
Legend
Total Width: 19 in 0.2 in = 1 Percent of Species Richness

4

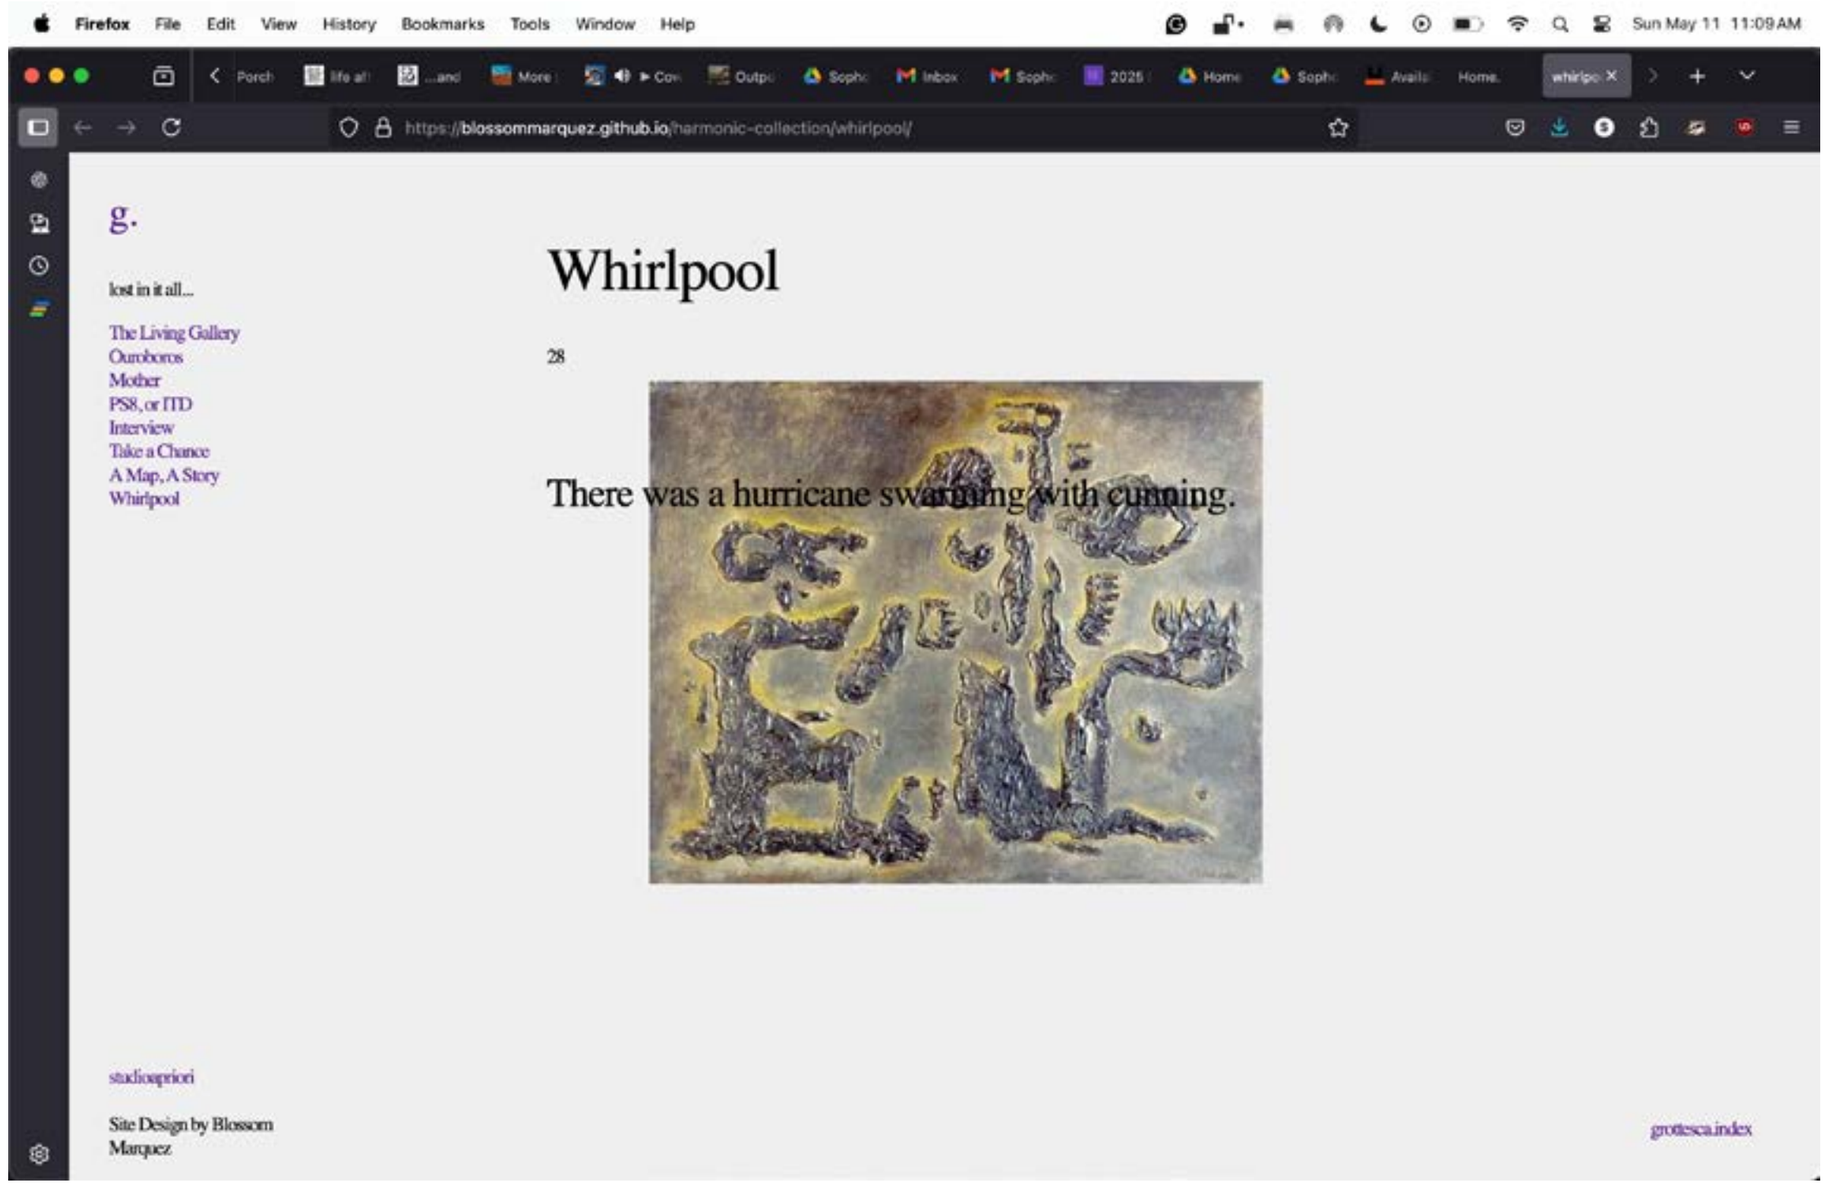
Skymap

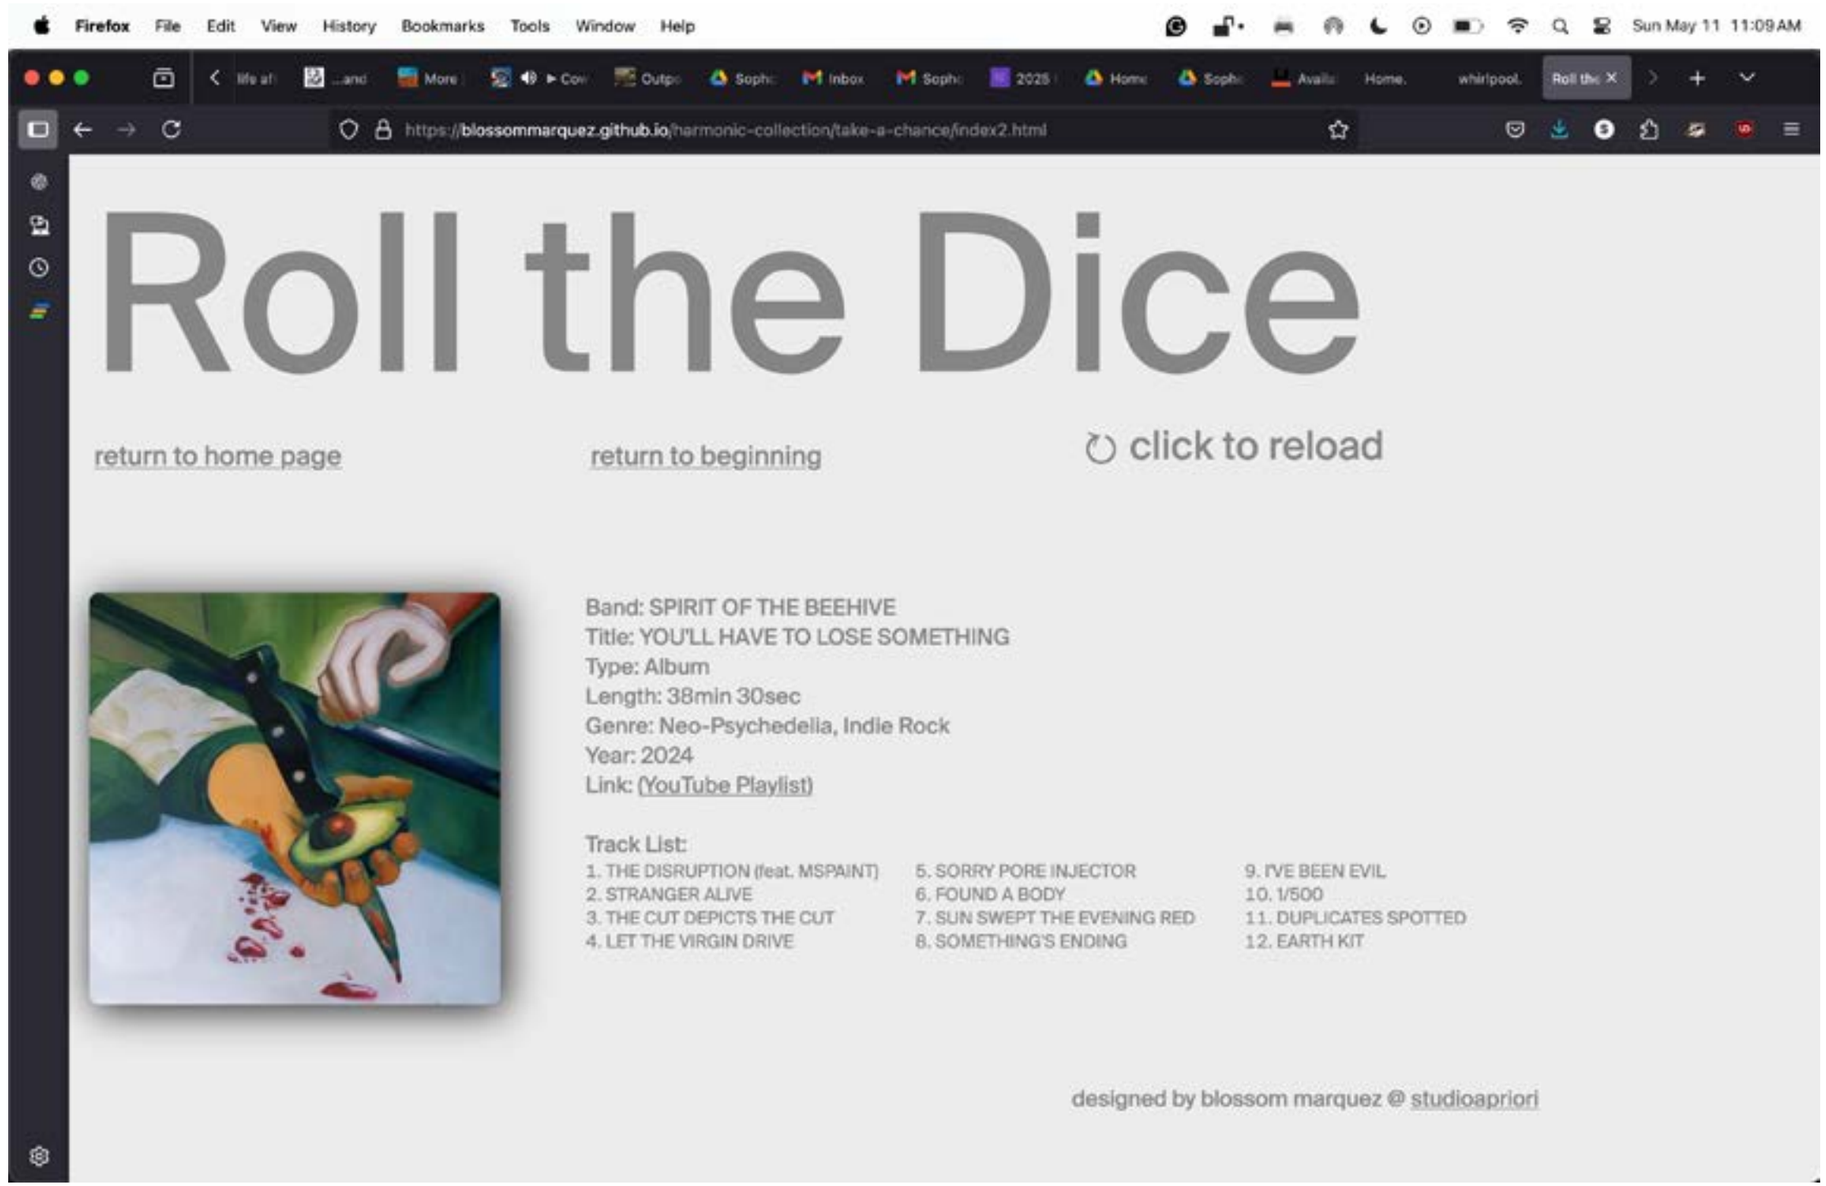
My skymap is an exploration of avian species richness in European cities. To illustrate this idea I created a bird like shape that roughly represents the statistical richness of avian species in the corresponding cities.

Harmonic Collection

My harmonic collection was an experiment in not only design but also in concept. The core idea was that of a grotto, something that was grottoesque, or grotesque, or grottesca, the original latin word. Through this effort I wanted to explore the deeper and darker happenings and events in life that one must experience for themselves to understand. In addition to this sense of exploration in the physical world I also wanted users to explore digitally and sonically.

Live URL: https://blossommarquez.github.io/harmonic-collection/





Firefox File Edit View History Bookmarks Tools Window Help
Sun May 11 11:09 AM
https://blossommarquez.github.io/harmonic-collection/take-a-chance/index2.html
Roll the Dice
return to home page return to beginning
click to reload
Band: SPIRIT OF THE BEEHIVE
Title: YOU'LL HAVE TO LOSE SOMETHING Type: Album
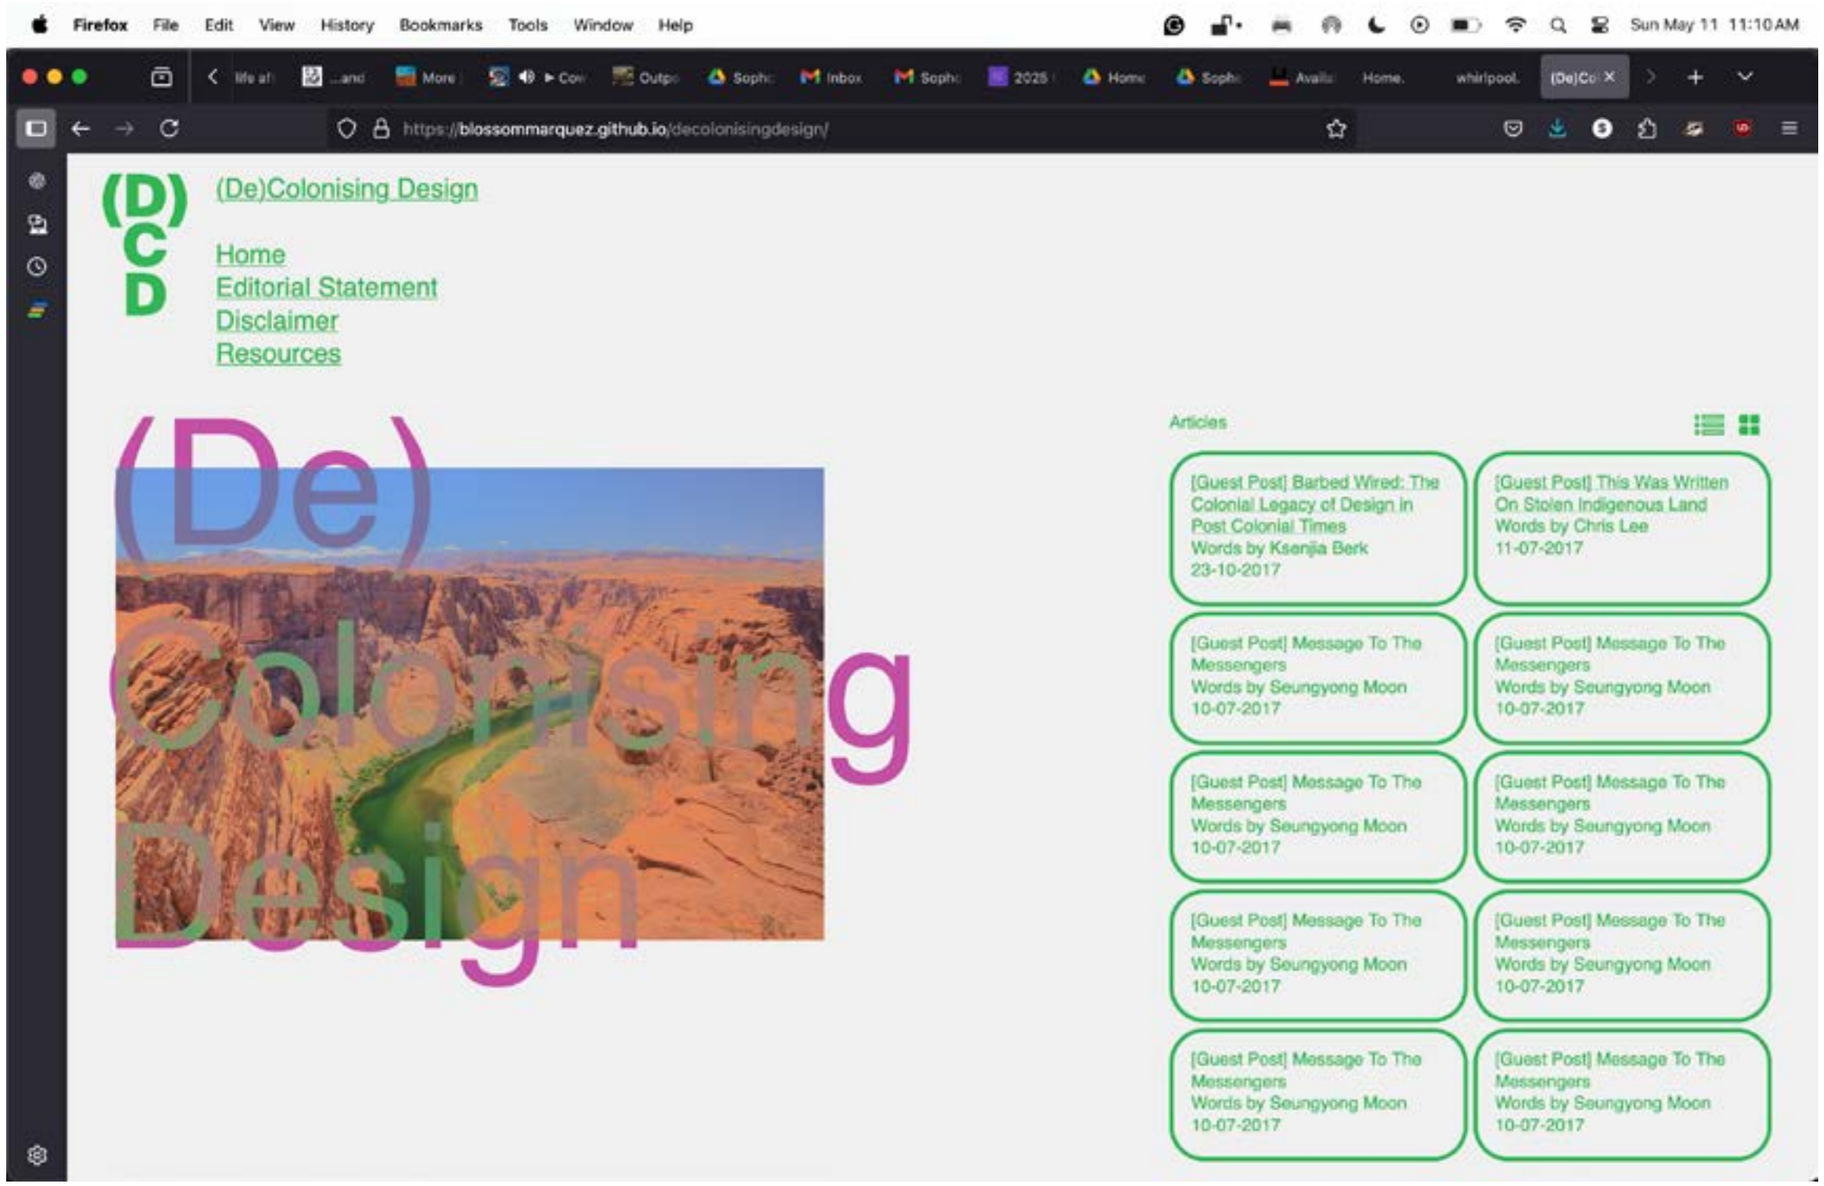
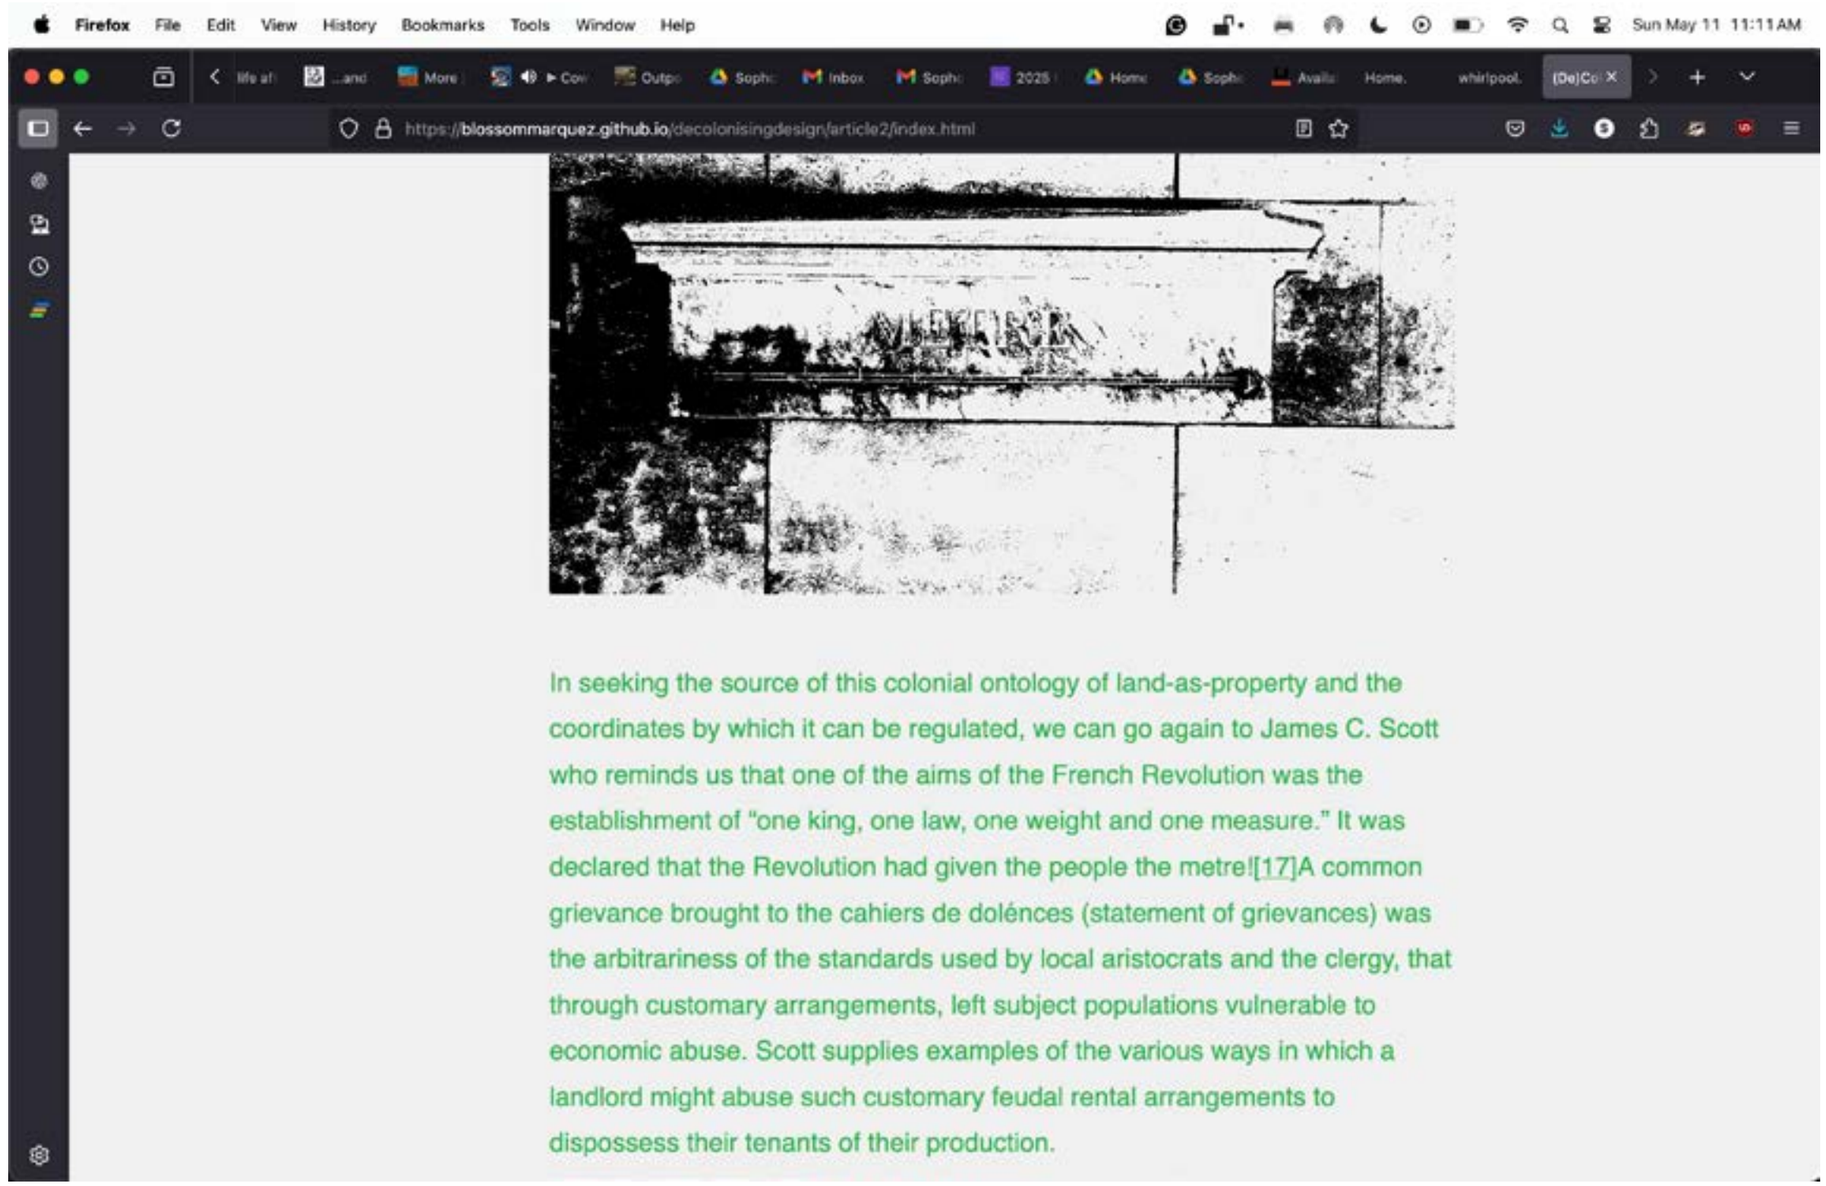
Length: 38min 30sec
Genre: Neo-Psychedelia, Indie Rock
Year: 2024
Link: (YouTube Playlist)
Track List:
1. THE DISRUPTION (feat. MSPAINT)
2. STRANGER ALIVE
3. THE CUT DEPICTS THE CUT
4. LET THE VIRGIN DRIVE
5. SORRY PORE INJECTOR
6. FOUND A BODY
7. SUN SWEPT THE EVENING RED
8. SOMETHING'S ENDING
9. I'VE BEEN EVIL
10. 1/500
11. DUPLICATES SPOTTED
12. EARTH KIT
designed by blossom marquez @ studioapriori

(De)Colonising Design

The concept behind (De) Colonising Design was quite simple, take an existing websites raw content and reflow it in a newer packaging. Coding from scratch to mimic and enhance an existing WordPress design felt like a challenge but ultimately meant that I was able to create the website exactly how I wanted to. This practice and exploration was also meant to garner a greater understanding of what a (De)Colonised Design system can look like.

Live URL: https://blossommarquez.github.io/decolonisingdesign/



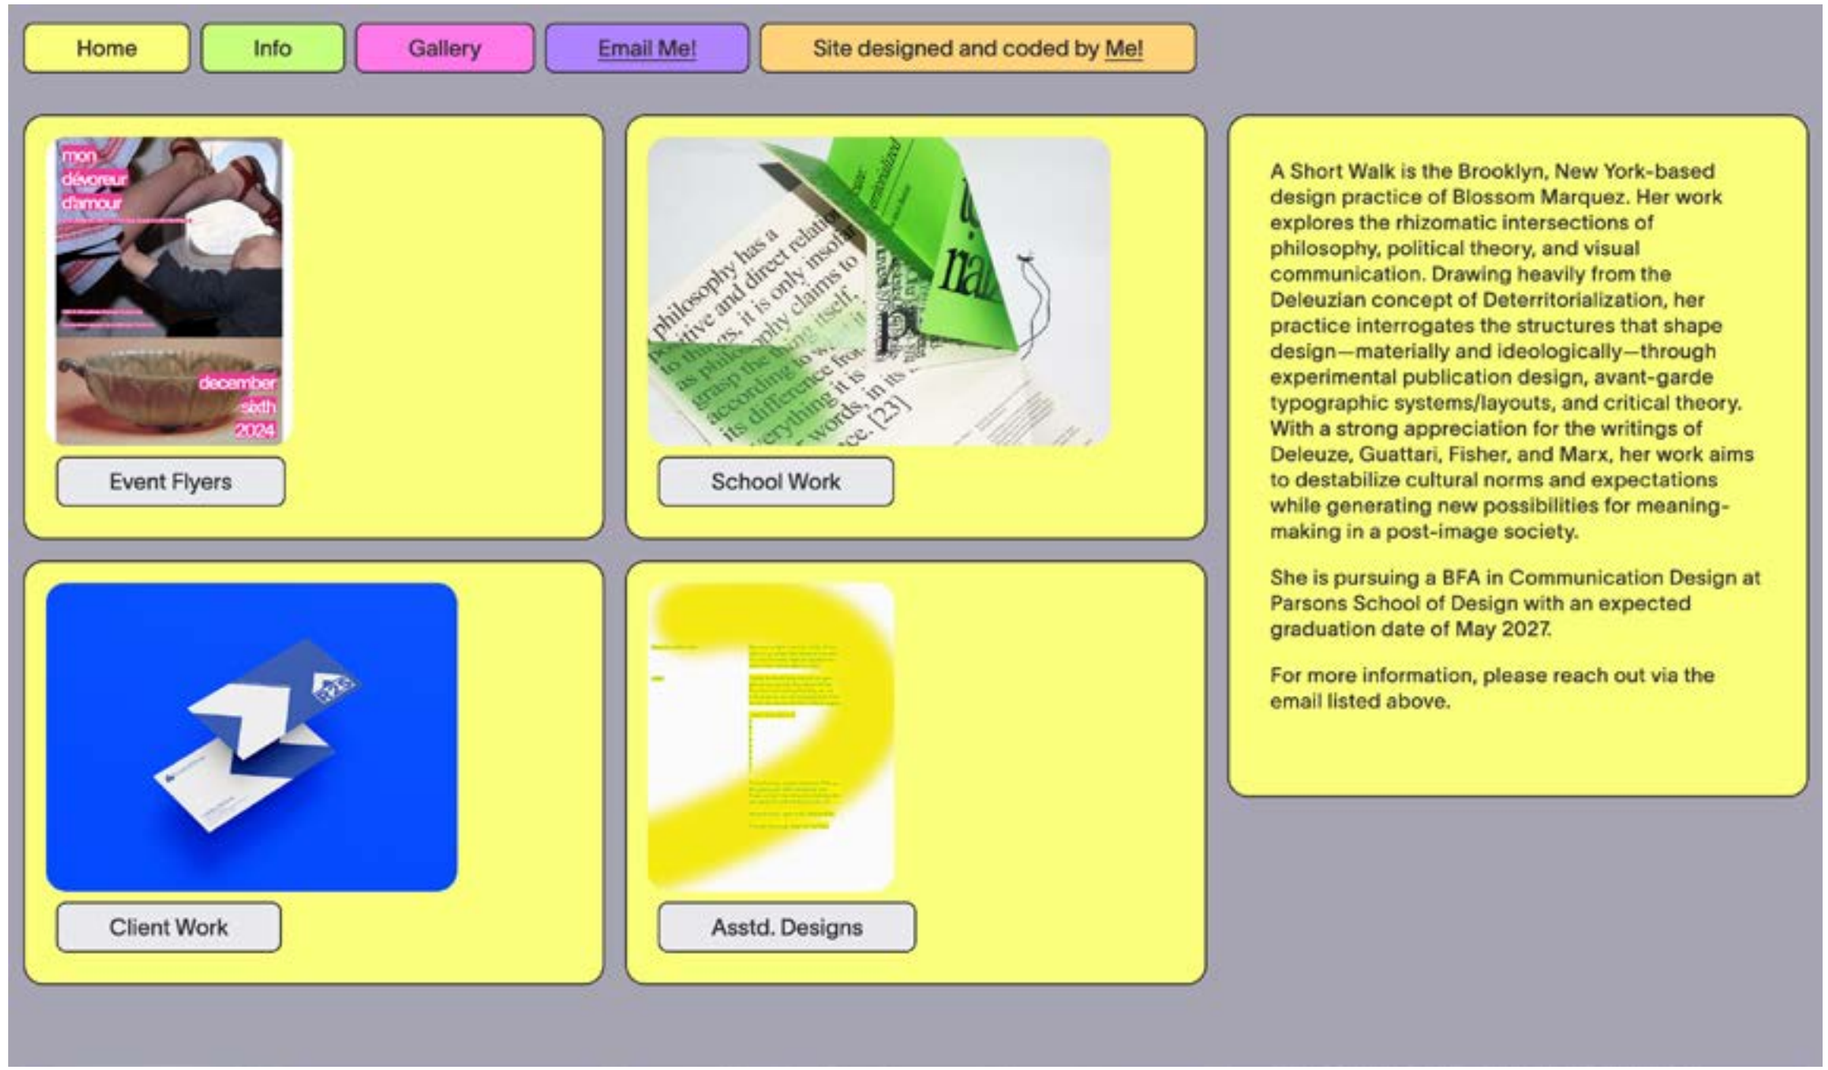


Firefox File Edit View History Bookmarks Tools Window Help
Sun May 11 11:11 AM
https://blossommarquez.github.io/decolonisingdesign/article2/index.html
In seeking the source of this colonial ontology of land-as-property and the coordinates by which it can be regulated, we can go again to James C. Scott who reminds us that one of the aims of the French Revolution was the establishment of "one king, one law, one weight and one measure." It was declared that the Revolution had given the people the metre![17]A common grievance brought to the cahiers de doléances (statement of grievances) was the arbitrariness of the standards used by local aristocrats and the clergy, that through customary arrangements, left subject populations vulnerable to economic abuse. Scott supplies examples of the various ways in which a landlord might abuse such customary feudal rental arrangements to dispossess their tenants of their production.

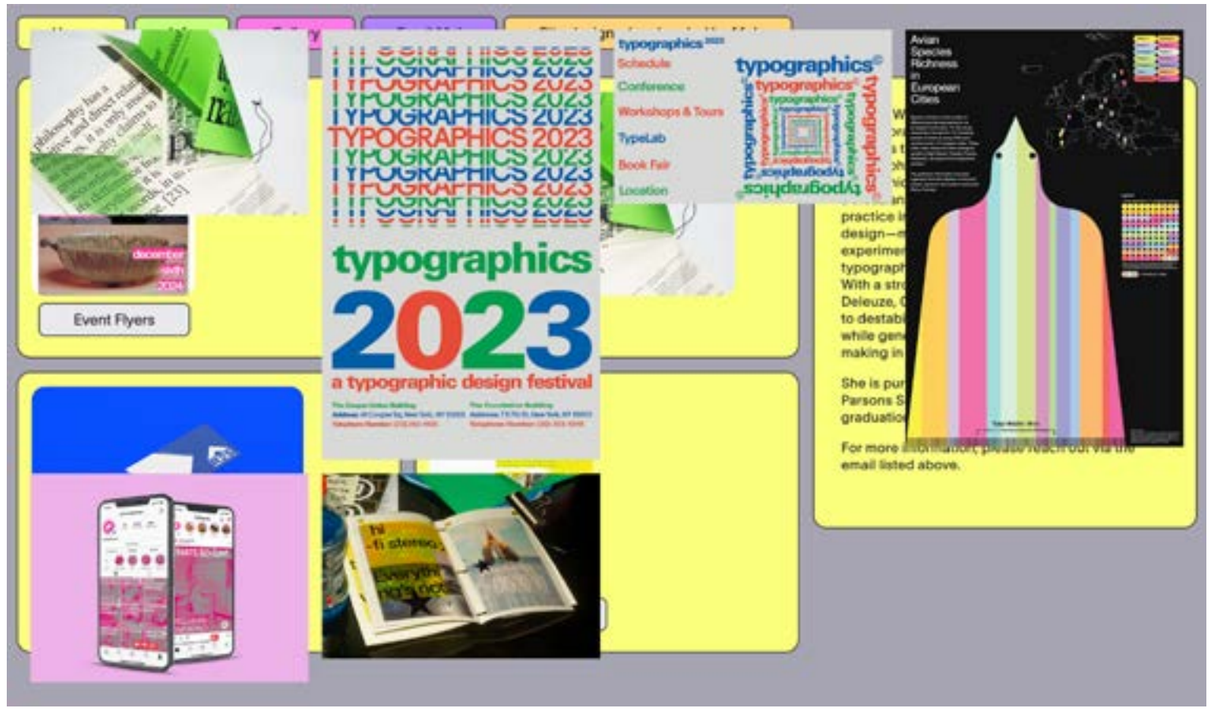
Website Redesign

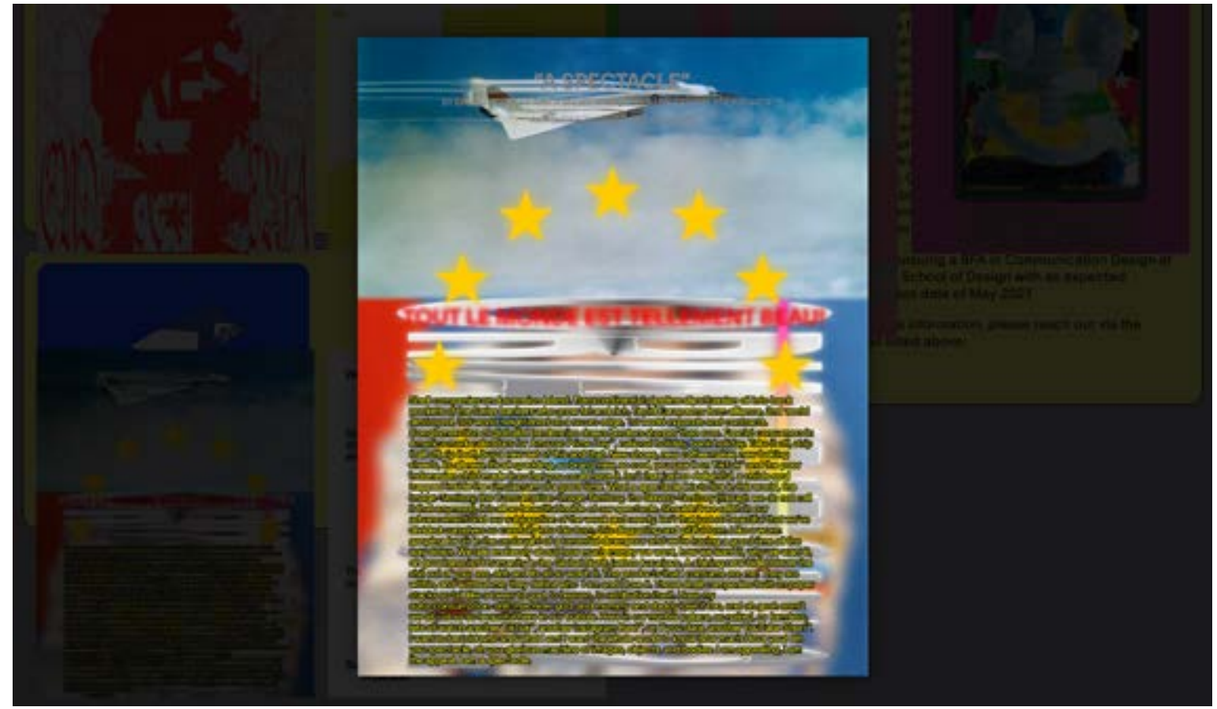
My personal website redesign that is meant to launch at the end of the summer has been a reimagining of my currently existing portfolio but this time built from scratch instead. I kept the playful laxity of my existing site and condensed it into an easier to manage and navigate version that plays into my continuing minimalist sensibilities.

Live URL:
None as of this moment :(



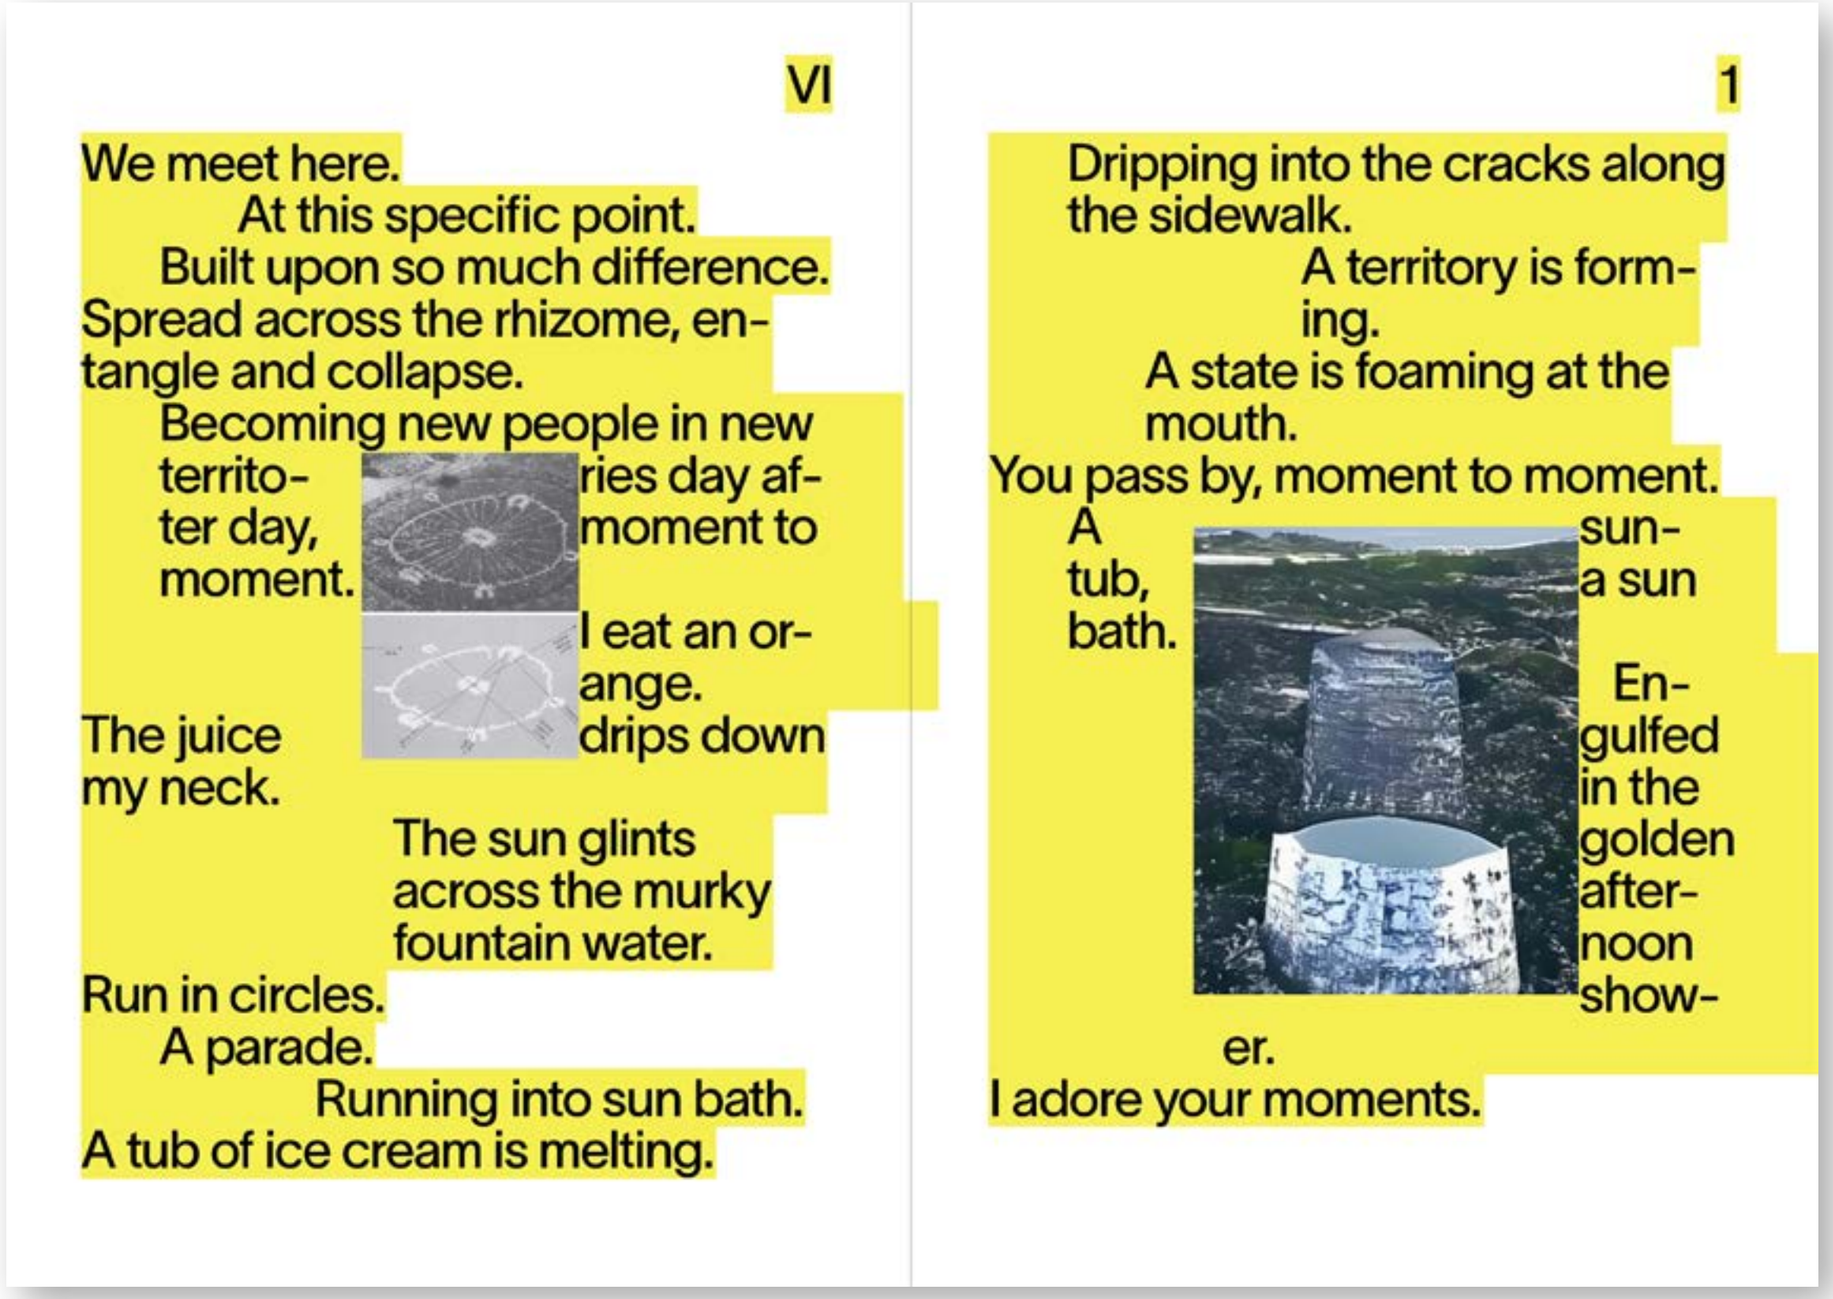
Website Redesign





Ma Maison est Mon Cœur

To continue practice of (De)/(Re)Territorialized Design I created my Home Publication around the concept of a (De)Territorialized interpretation of home. Through the use of a script that added randomized line breaks and indentation at the beginning of each line I created a sense of chance and randomness, just how home is based on these same things.
Using translucent and opaque paper I added in a physical touch of these same themes. It is bound in a bioplastic film to highlight naturality and the opacity of viewership of ones life.



VI

We meet here.
At this specific point.
Built upon so much difference.
Spread across the rhizome, entangle and collapse.
Becoming new people in new territo- ries day after day, moment to moment.

I eat an orange.
The juice drips down my neck.

The sun glints across the murky fountain water.

Run in circles.
A parade.
Running into sun bath.
A tub of ice cream is melting.

1

Dripping into the cracks along the sidewalk.
A territory is forming.
A state is foaming at the mouth.
You pass by, moment to moment.
A sun-
tub, a sun bath.

Engulfed in the golden afternoon shower.
I adore your moments.

Ma Maison est Mon Cœur

52

Reed

17

I see a mansard roof through the trees,

I see a salty message w ritten in the eaves.
The Genius.co m annotat
ors for th ese songs are th orough and spirited.
"More typical of Gilded Age neo-Gothic design," writes
one commenter.

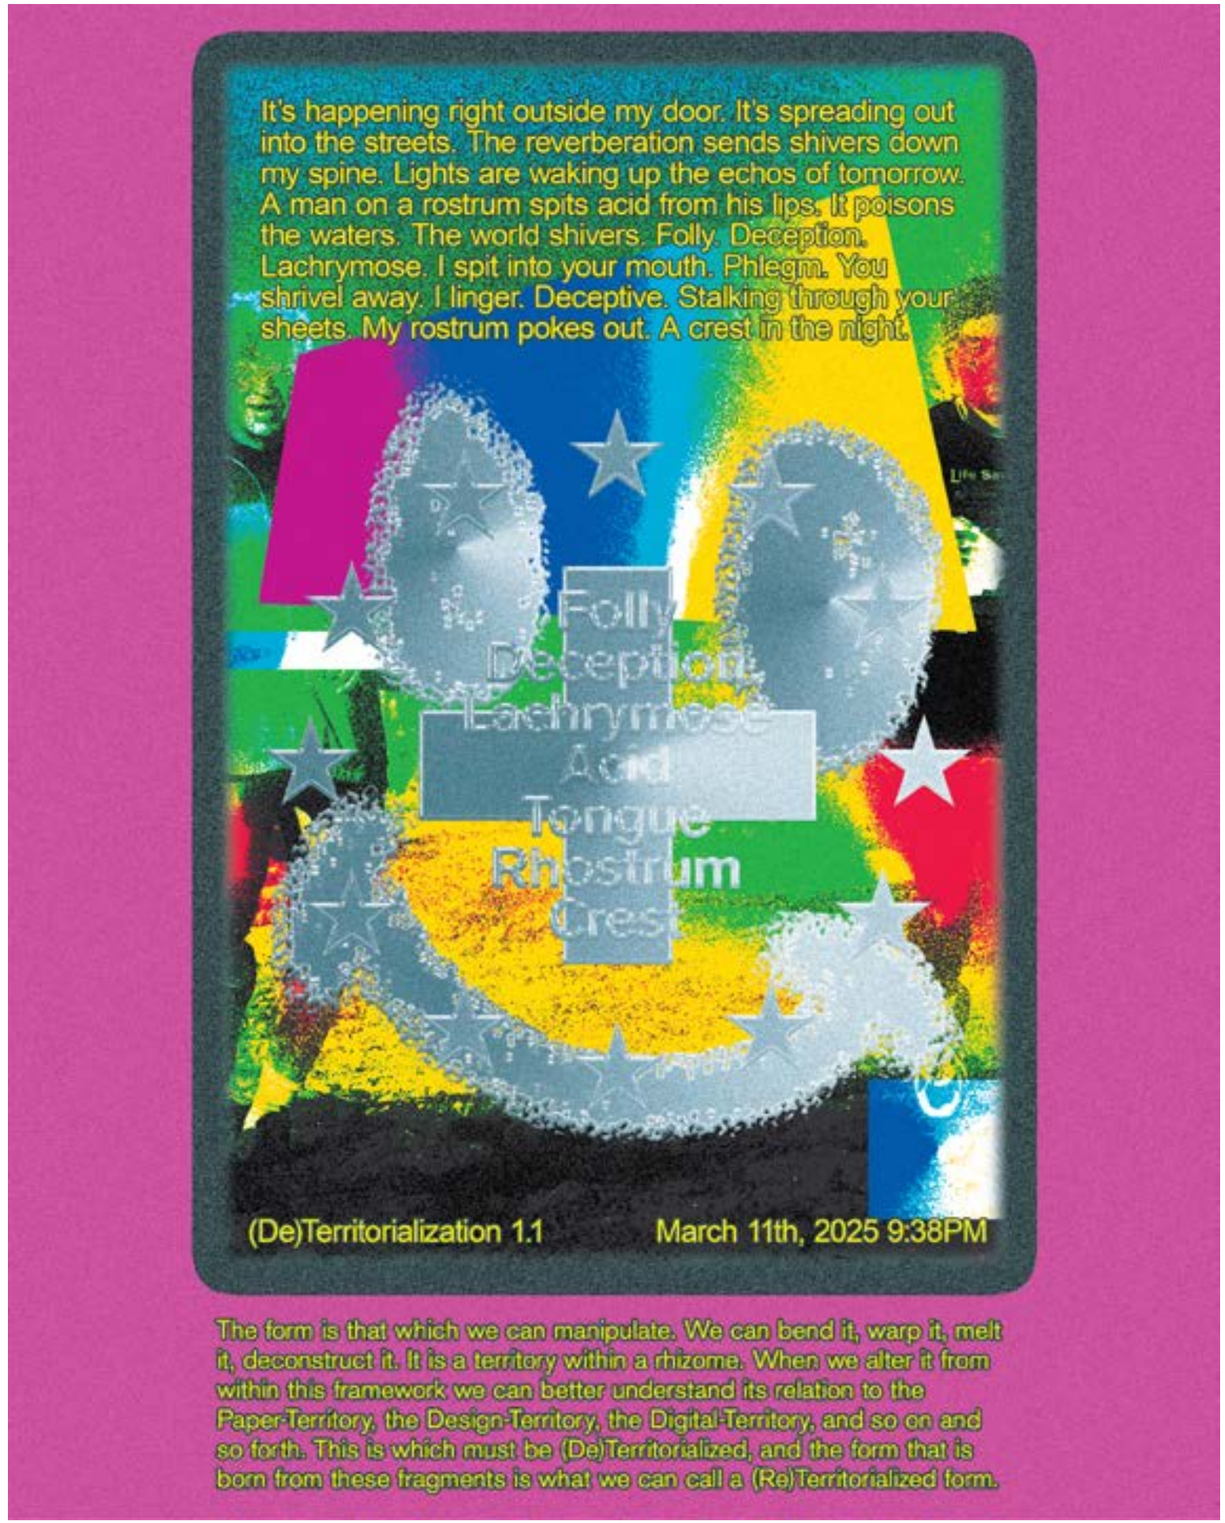
(De)Territorializations

The most recent additions to my design repertoire are what I have simply dubbed “(De) Territorializations.” These designs are experiments that seek to answer the question of “What does a (De)Territorialized design look like?” So far I haven’t answered that but have been able to explore and learn what design as an extraction and condensation of principles, ideology, and practice looks like.



(De)Territorialization 1.1

"A SPECTACLE"
TOUT LE MONDE EST TELLEMENT BEAU
Shell companies on Ascension Island. Transcontinental pipeline slips Russian oil into back pockets of the Swiss bankers who grow fat and rich. Tepid Europeans form alliance, 2nd world destroyed, 3rd world heightened on a razors edge, 1st world expands and contracts. Conglomeration of globalist tendencies draws borders sharper than ever. Fascist consumers in America mark calendars for Amazon Prime Day™, national holiday, bank holiday. Take it off, strip it all off, rip it off, buy a new set of this and that. New shoes, new coffeemaker, new baking sheets, its all new. It's all sparkling, so brand new, so cool, you saw it on TikTok™ and the poor Indonesian child made it so that you could have it. Isn't that just so delightful, a childs soul trapped inside the simulacrum of a good time. What a spectacle it is to live in this world, the Image-Territory, the Consumption-Image-Territory, the Slavery-Territory (though we do not call it that anymore), it is all so beautiful inside of our spectacle. Shouldn't we relish in our advancement and our subjugation of the weak and needy, isn't that just so beautiful that we've divided ourselves so carefully into this form, this disgusting and pitiful form. Like a worm gasping for air in the onslaught of a torrential downpour and we're having a good time all the way down. We talk endlessly about how much money we want, how we want it, why we want it, oh goodness isn't humanity in the Global North just so luxurious. A shining new bidet blows the shit out of your ass, ahh and its all so worth it. The products that I consume are me! They are within, and without me, they define who I am and I love it. Those shell companies built on paper stacks so tall like a tower to god, to heaven, to retribution itself. I love my auto-consumption-shit-machine-god, and mommy and daddy love it too, and oh gosh aren't we all just so so beautiful here in our bubble. Here in our marble palace, so naked, so formless, lets all watch another TikTok™, another Instagram Reel™, or, if you dare, another YouTube Short™. I want to be told who and what I am! I want the whole world to know how much I love you! Oh you spectacle, oh you glorious machine of images, objects, and bodies. I am appealing, I am the appeal. I am a spectacle.

Literal-Tangible (Utility)
This can be defined simply as the cohesion of design ideology and object utility. When the design of the object matches its utility, you have a literal tangibility that can be understood without question. For example, the eyeglasses repair kit is designed with pure utility in mind; its ideological execution, or its design, matches its literal use.
Literal-Tangibility and Simulated-Tangibility sit on opposite sides of a spectrum; in between, there are many different points in which an object can rest.
Legibility through Utility Everything in-between Illegibility through Emotions
Simulated-Tangible (Emotional)
If the literal-tangible, sitting on one end of a spectrum, is the cohesion of design ideology and object utility, then simulated-tangibility is the complete and total lack of cohesion between design and utility. The tangibility of the object becomes simulated and thus relies on orders of simulation to retain relevancy. For example, Graza's branding relates and appeals to the prescribed emotions of the end user experience (cutesy and rustic); in doing so, the product's utility is usurped by the design, thus creating tension rather than cohesion.